

8 August 2011

WARREN JOEL OFFERS EXPERT ADVICE ON BUYING AND SELLING COLLECTIBLES FOR SELF MANAGED SUPERANNUATION FUNDS

With Financial Planners currently suggesting that paintings and other collectibles be included in self managed investment portfolios, now is the perfect time to contact Warren Joel for expert advice on buying and selling collectibles including artwork, antiques, collectibles and jewels.

Warren Joel, third generation of the iconic Joel family of auctioneers, and one of the most experienced valuers in Australia, has launched his own firm, ByJoel .

ByJoel offers valuations of fine art, furniture, decorative art, collectibles and residential contents for insurance, market value, family law, superannuation and accounting

Warren Joel says: "The government agreed with the Cooper Review who recommended paintings and other collectables should be classified as legitimate assets in self-managed superannuation funds.

"The huge growth in the art market which has been supported by several studies, indicates the level of risk which occurs in investing in the art market and that of investing in the stock market were often similar. According to economic forecaster Access Economics, by 2004, art had outstripped property in profit terms

"As fund managers are required to re-value the art in their self managed superannuation funds annually at the end of each business year, and with substantial costs involved in selling art, individuals and corporate investors alike must seek expert advice on the artworks and collectables in their funds.

"When a decision has been made to sell, ByJoel can choose the best auction room and location in a city or a country, thereby providing the best outcome for the item being sold for the vendor."

For more information, please contact:

Kay Hamilton
Publicist
0417 504 559